

Wrapped in Alison's Warmth

Today I headed to Marin Fiber Arts for the booksigning with the wonderful, amazing, gentle spirit that is incarnated as Alison Hyde.

She brought her wonderful shawls for us to admire and drool over, and although the sun is not great for her, she would not remain alone, but joined us on the floor, refusing to take a proffered chair – there's a humorous story she told about a couch, but it is her story, and I leave it to her to tell it.

The book is lovely and wonderful too. These shawls really do work so much better than others that I have seen, and lucky me, the Carlsbad scarf is perfect for some bombyx silk from Ellen's ½ Pint Farm that I bought at Stitches West earlier this year. And I will decide on whether a shawl is in my future.

Revknits

Faith and life seen through the stitches we make.
<http://revknits.com>

She laughed with Patricia, of the very cool Sea Socks '08

took photos herself

and posed with me and Warren Agee, owner and inspiration of Marin Fiber Arts.

It was a good day!