

Home again

I got home on Friday. I confess, when I saw Mt Tam from the East Bay, I got a bit misty-eyed - it's been five weeks, but it has also been a lifetime of highs and lows.

Yesterday, I took a photo of my balcony to remind myself what a beautiful place I live in.

Things I like about home:

1. it's where my stuff is - like kitchen, food, clothes, yarn stash
2. it's also where my kitties are - you provide lots of entertainment - maybe I don't really need cable TV
3. I wake up, and everything I need is right here
4. my bed - it's not perfect, but I sleep very well here
5. my community - just outside the door
6. friends who leave you food after a long journey away - they are the best!
7. friends who will help me figure out the next steps of my life and my mom's - they are the best too!
8. Reviving a gift knitting project - Poplar and Elm - the lighter color of the Eden 3-ply yarn will be much better for the recipient:

Revknits

Faith and life seen through the stitches we make.

<http://revknits.com>

