

A Little Seduction for the New Year

I'm done with the old year. Done, done, done! Did I mention how I'm done with it all?

New things beckon, new possibilities to unfold, and I'm so, so glad that there is yarn to play with. See what lovelies I have?

The lovely rose-colored one on the left? Courtesy of Scout of Scout's Swag, the latest club shipment. I hope she sells this in her store eventually, because it is really nice. I really, really like it, and I'm pondering the possibilities of a lovely scarf or shawl, possibly out of Sock-Yarn One Skein Wonders.

Revknits

Faith and life seen through the stitches we make.
<http://revknits.com>

The other one is from Iv Brambles Sockscene - a gift from Nhien, who is a long-time friend in southern California - the colors couldn't be more perfect for me. See the lovely colors?

Revknits

Faith and life seen through the stitches we make.

<http://revknits.com>

I'm thinking a textured pair of socks would be nice!

In other knitting progress, a pair of mittens is close to done:

Revknits

Faith and life seen through the stitches we make.

<http://revknits.com>

and a pair of socks for someone headed to Iraq will be done by the time he's headed out:

Revknits

Faith and life seen through the stitches we make.

<http://revknits.com>

