

Slogging Along

I'm happy to report that my Mom got out of the hospital yesterday, and she is back at her assisted living home. Hopefully we've got a plan for her to stay strong and keep the pain at bay.

On the kitty front - we've heard kitty meows near the building, including even one of the neighbor cats, but so far, we can't find a kitty, and the trap has remained empty. All the neighbors on alert, just hoping that something changes.

More progress on the sock, but life has been pretty busy.