

Swap goodness

Yesterday I got a lovely mystery swap package that was organized on the Ravelry board of Laura Nelkins. I love that this was a very targeted swap - we all filled out an information form on our preferences, and our swap partners looked us up on Ravelry to make sure that our packages would be lovely and appropriate.

Teri did a great job for my package:

And some new to me yarns will be fun to check out too - we were to get a whole skein and some sample amounts to make jewelry out of:

Revknits

Faith and life seen through the stitches we make.
<http://revknits.com>

In other news, I am done spinning the small amount (2 oz) of merino-silk, and love how it came out. I may partner it with another yarn for a project, time will tell.

Revknits

Faith and life seen through the stitches we make.

<http://revknits.com>
